Course Evaluations Block 3

Advanced Functional Programming
Very low number of responses. The teacher could encourage the students next year to react in higher numbers.
The comments that were given are positive. Nothing remarkable stands out.

Algorithms and Network
Very low number of responses. The teacher could encourage the students next year to react in higher numbers.
The comments that were given are positive. The second exam was a bit of a problem but this can be excused due to the COVID-19 outbreak.
No reaction from one of the teachers.
AP: Contact the teacher who did not react.

Big Data
Given that this is a mandatory course the evaluations are very positive.
No reaction from one of the teachers.
AP: Contact the teacher about getting a review.

Computer Vision
We noticed big improvements compared to last year.
Given that this is also a mandatory course the evaluations are quite positive.
The lectures given by the PhD student where better received this year compared to last year.

Evolutionary Computing
Very low number of responses. The teacher could encourage the students next year to react in higher numbers.
The comments that were given are positive. The exam was a bit of a problem but this can be excused due to the COVID-19 outbreak. The same holds for some comments about the communication. The students who gave these negative comments were aware of the difficulty of the situation.
No reaction from the teacher.
AP: Contact the teacher about getting a review.

Game Physics
Given that this is the first time the teacher gave this course the reaction are quite positive. Most negative comments can be excused to the fact that the slides were all made from scratch.

Students reacted positively to the teacher's method of communication during the COVID-19 outbreak.

Multimodal Interaction

Very good comments about both teachers.

Most negative comments were individual disagreements but not really major negative aspects that the teachers need to resolve next year.

No reaction from one of the teachers.

AP: Contact the teacher who did not react.
